

Top finalist - 2015 National Excellence in Romance Fiction Award. I wasn't looking for this. I wasn't looking for him. But he may be exactly what I need to survive. My name is Keri, and at twenty-four, I've lost both parents, I've been beaten down by men and the system, and I barely escaped juvie. So, why now, after everything I've been through, when I'm facing the scariest thing life has thrown at me, does a guy walk into it and change everything? Jace is unlike any man I've ever known. He's generous, witty, talented, and wise beyond his years. He has vision--vision that for some inexplicable reason, we seem to share. Maybe it's because we share something else as well--this cruel, horrible bond that others can't fathom. We soon come to understand it goes beyond that. Beyond what either of us could even begin to comprehend. But is this bond strong enough to overcome the disparity of our backgrounds; and more importantly, is it strong enough to help us face our mortality together? I can't recommend this book enough. The story was written with powerful details of the effects of cancer on the body without taking away from the gradual tale of their love. If anything it enhanced it. The banter between Keri and Jace was humorous and honest. This was not a sad story, it was anything but. However, it was an emotional story that had me in tears one minute and laughing the next. If I could give it 10 stars, I would. ~ Dayreader Reviews I have not been able to stop thinking about Abstract Love! Truly, it's phenomenal. One of the best books I've read this year. ~ One More Chapter
